

THE COMMISSIONERS ELECT CITY OFFICIALS

John S. Michaux City Clerk and Ira B. Iseley Chief of Police--Executive Session for Election of Officers.

The Board of Commissioners in session yesterday elected the following officers, the election being behind closed doors and contrary to section 54 of the new charter under which the city's governing body will work:

City Clerk, John S. Michaux.
Chief of Police, Ira B. Iseley.
First Sergeant, J. R. Barnes.
Second Sergeant, R. E. Pearce.
City Physician, A. R. Wilson.
Health Officer, J. W. Donovan.
City Attorney, A. Wayland Cooke.
Prosecuting Attorney, E. D. Kuyken.

Cemetery Keeper, Charles Hiatt.
Treasurer, E. A. Brown.
Mayor Pro Tem, J. G. Foushee, Jr.

Inspector, R. H. Milton.
Yesterday afternoon, following the second executive session the following business was transacted: New police officers elected. D. F. Causey, W. H. Foushee, A. B. McFarland, W. T. McQuiston, C. A. Jones, E. E. Glenn, D. E. Hepler, J. M. Pugh. All the officers were sworn in, except Causey, Glenn, Hepler and Pugh, these being sworn in later.

After the officers were elected Commissioner Brown moved that the salary of the Judge of Municipal Court be increased from $1,000 to $1,200 per annum. The salary of the city attorney was fixed at $500 as was the salary of the prosecuting attorney. The salary of the other officers remained as formerly. Commissioner Brown also moved that the police officers be required to give bond in the sum of $500 each, the chief of police, the health officer and the meat and milk inspector $1,000 each, the mayor and the treasurer at $10,000 each. This motion was carried.

The board fixed 2:30 p. m. as the hour for the daily sessions.

A general shakeup in the police force was expected, but the result was a little surprise to some. Mr. Iseley, the new chief, has been on the police force for several years and has made an excellent officer. Mr. Iseley did not make application for the position of chief and his election came as a great surprise. Chief Needley, his predecessor, has served as chief for the past six years and prior to that time he served as patrolman for two and a half years. He has made a most efficient officer and while he has made enemies by his strict attention to the duties imposed upon him, he gives up official life with the warm friendship of a large percentage of the best people in the city.

First Sergeant J. R. Barnes is no stranger in Greensboro, having served as first sergeant until two years ago. Second Sergeant Pearce has made good during the past two years as his reelection testifies. The new patrolmen, E. E. Glenn and J. M. Pugh, have both seen service on the police force. Mr. Glenn serving as extra officer at odd times during the past two years and before that time was a regular officer. Mr. Pugh was on the force several years ago. Officers H. S. Patterson and J. R. Jeffers, the deposed patrolmen, have both made good as officers.

The action of the commissioners in going into the election of the various officers behind closed doors was commented on quite freely upon the streets yesterday afternoon. The new charter was hunted up and it was found that section 54 contained the following provision: "All meetings of the Board of Commissioners, regular or special, shall be open to the public." A large number of people had left the hall when the executive session began in the morning and the news was scattered over the city that the new commissioners were in executive session.

A number of attorneys were asked to express their opinion regarding this action and practically all agreed that it was not legal.

A. Wayland Cooke, who was elected the legal advisor of the board, was shown the section and he said: "The section speaks for itself."

E. J. Justice stated that the commissioners not only had no right to hold an executive session, but were violating their written and oral oath in so doing. One of the features of the charter, he said, was to prevent any secret meetings, or sessions, and that all the requirements that public statements of the city's affairs, financial and otherwise, be made were drawn with this in view in order that no action taken by the board could be done without the knowledge of the public. Section 54 was drawn especially for the purpose of preventing secret sessions as which states could be made, leaving only the formal action to be taken in public, he said.

LEWIS WEST DIES TODAY

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 4.—At the penitentiary tonight the death watch is being maintained for the last night for Lewis West, the negro who is to die tomorrow for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Munford at Wilson last February. The officers and the minister who saw West today report that he manifests a great degree of composure.

The pursuit of West, after the killing of the deputy sheriff, and his arrest in Lumberton with six revolvers on his person was the biggest sensation in criminal events in this State for many months.

SENATOR HOLDEN RESIGNS.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 4.—Governor Kitchin today received the resignation of B. T. Holden, State Senator in the Seventh district. Senator Holden resigns to become Mayor of Louisville.

Federals Take Elgato.

Special to Telegram.

Presidio, Texas, May 4.—The federal losses in a battle outside Ojinaga yesterday are reported to be 50, according to a messenger arriving here today. The battle was fought at Elgato, the federals finally entering the town last night with 500 men and two field pieces.

MADERO APPEALS TO DIAZ TO GIVE UP PRESIDENCY

Special to Telegram.

El Paso, Texas, May 4.—At the second session of the peace conference, which began at 4 o'clock this afternoon, Madero, Jr., through his peace commissioner, Gomez, presented to Judge Carbajal, the Mexican envoy, an appeal to Diaz to make public the assurances given privately that he intends to resign. After offering his resignation as president of the provisional government of the Republic, Madero suggested that both Diaz and Vice President Corral resign and that Senor De La Barra, Minister of Foreign Relations, become president until a general election can be held.

Fighting May Be Resumed Today.

El Paso, Texas, May 4.—When the Mexican peace commission met this morning it was stated that unless peace conditions were agreed upon before morning the rebels would begin a general attack on the border towns tomorrow. The meeting was held in a 200-foot ring midway between Juarez and Madero's camp, a heavy guard being stationed around the peaceful ground.

Judge Carbajal, of the Mexican Supreme Court, represented the Mexican government, while Dr. Vazquez Gomez, head insurrector, assisted Madero, Sr., with Senor Pino Suarez as legal advisor, for the rebels. Madero remained in camp and Courcez were dispatched back and forth with the news. The retirement of Diaz is one of the principal demands of the insurgents.

Tablet to Memory of American Seamen to Be Unveiled May 11

AMERICAN seamen are to be honored by a tablet to be unveiled in Bancroft Memorial hall at the Annapolis Naval academy May 11. President Taft has been asked to attend the exercises, and it is expected that members of his cabinet and representatives of the various patriotic societies will be present. The tablet is the work of William Cooper, the distinguished New York sculptor, and its cost was $5,000. More than 1,800 pounds of bronze were used in making the tablet, which is on a panel nine feet eleven inches high and five feet four inches wide. At the bottom of the tablet is the inscription prepared by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, as follows: "In memory of the American seamen who, on ship of war and privateer, fought valiantly for the independence of the United States, which they did so much to win, the Daughters of the Revolution place this tablet here." The design of the tablet, executed in low relief, shows the deck of a Revolutionary vessel during action. The ship has been struck, and smoke is rising from the bulwarks. In the foreground stands a sailor with arm upraised, as if pointing out some object. Behind him is another sailor kneeling and sighting a gun, while farther back another man is approaching, bearing a cannon ball. The work has been highly praised by those who have seen the design.

ANOTHER DOCTOR JOINS IN FIGHT AGAINST HOOKWORM

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 4.—Dr. E. W. Covington, of Rockingham, has given up his private practice to assume the duties of district director of the campaign against hookworm disease. Dr. Covington is to be congratulated on receiving this important appointment, and on having the opportunity for extending his valuable work over a large territory. He, like the other three district directors already in the work in the State, is well fitted to fill his office. He received his academic education at Davidson College, and his medical education at the University of North Carolina and the University of Maryland. After serving as hospital resident physician for one year he located at Rockingham. There he has built up a splendid practice, has held important medical appointments, and won the esteem of the country at large.

The three physicians already holding positions as district directors are Drs. B. W. Page, C. F. Strodsider and C. L. Pridden. These, with Dr. Jno. A. Ferrell, the State Director of the campaign, make four physicians giving their entire time to the hookworm campaign. Besides the physicians there are six microscopists in the laboratory of hygiene at Raleigh devoting their entire time to making the examinations for hookworm infection.

Since the beginning of the campaign more than 20,000 people in the State have availed themselves of the opportunity for having free examinations

TWENTY-ONE BILLS OF INDICTMENT IN DYNAMITING CASE

Special to Telegram.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 4.—Ortie E. McManigal, who gave information which led to the arrest of the two McNamara brothers and himself, appeared before the grand jury this afternoon and furnished information on which twenty-one indictments were voted to be returned tomorrow morning.

One of the indictments charges McManigal with dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works in this city last Christmas and another charges J. J. McNamara with furnishing the funds and planning the plot.

Nineteen other indictments charge J. B. McNamara and J. J. McNamara with murder in connection with the Times disaster.

Notice To Red Men.

made for the disease. Approximately one-third of them have shown infection. The rapid progress made in educating the people on the eradication of the disease and general sanitation and their splendid response point to the ultimate eradication of this and allied diseases. The workers should have the hearty cooperation of every citizen.

LAWS

Regarding Quarantine for Smallpox Repealed by Last Legislature.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 4.—The statement was made at the office of the Corporation Commission today that the commission has decided to reserve its ruling in the petition for the Weldon-Raleigh shoo-fly to continue its run to Hamlet until July 1. There has been no time set for the ruling in this case but the order disposing of the case one way or another has been expected almost daily for some time.

The Wake County Superior Court devoted the forenoon to taking testimony in the case of Mrs. J. S. Grogan, of Winston-Salem, vs. Capt. S. A. Ashe, executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Henrietta P. Martin, who died here six years ago leaving an estate of nearly one hundred thousand dollars. The Grogans are suing for $4,500 legacy, complaining that they have never received any part of their share of the estate. Mrs. Martin having been an aunt of Mrs. Grogan. The court, Judge Whedbee presiding, intimated purpose to give judgment for $3,500 portion of the claim and reserves ruling as to another $1,000 legacy which it is claimed has an offset. J. S. Grogan was here as counsel for his wife in the case.

The jury in Wake Superior Court that sat in the case of George M. Harden and W. H. Osborn, the latter of Greensboro, against the Southern and the C. & O. Railroad Company for damage to a car of horses through a stallion having gotten loose among them and kicked and bit several of them badly, has returned a verdict for $710. The suit was for $1,100.

The Big Creek Telephone Company of Westfield, Stokes county, is chartered with $10,000 capital, by J. C. Frans and others. Local exchanges and long distance service are both provided for.

In the case pending sometime before the Corporation Commission involving the right of the Norfolk & Southern Railroad Company to charge a wharfage fee at Washington and New Bern for freight taken by steamboat companies at Norfolk and delivered there at these Carolina ports for shipment inland, not at Greenville and Kinston, the commission finds that the wharfage is discriminatory as compared with Elizabeth City, Belhaven and Morehead where no wharfage is charged. If levied at one point the commission holds the fee should be levied at all other wharfs of the company where like conditions exist. The petition was principally by the Lake Drummond Transportation Company.

Attention was directed recently to the fact that the recent Legislature, at the instance of the State Board of Health, had repealed, in revising the State health laws, the section that required quarantine to be maintained by the authorities when smallpox appears in any community. Now there is just issued by Secretary W. S. Rankin flaming posters to be put up throughout the State giving notice and warning of this change and pointing out general vaccination as the only means of preventing the spread of the disease. The notice sets out that quarantine is an uncertain and expensive protection and designated as class protection as the majority of people have now been vaccinated. A decided spirit of resentment for this change by the State Board is being manifested and the situation is aggravated here by the fact that there is a case of smallpox reported here and no quarantine.

The Traveler's Protective Association for North Carolina meets here tomorrow with indications that all eleven of the local posts in the State will be represented. There are 800 members. Preparations are made for a big barbecue for 150 people out at the State Fair grounds. The first session convenes at 10:30 o'clock. The travelers will be welcomed by Mayor James I. Johnson and C. L. Tomlinson, of High Point, will make the response.

May 8 to 11 there will be in session in this city the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Carolina Methodist Conference. Mrs. R. B. Johns being the president of the society. A special guest will be Mrs. R. W. McDonnell of Nash-

FREIGHT RATE CASE IS AGAIN POSTPONED

Interstate Commerce Commission Fixes Date of Hearing Case Against Norfolk & Western as June 15--May Give Relief.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 4.—The order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, several times postponed, for compelling the Norfolk & Western Railroad Company to give a more equitable and lower rate for freight shipped from Cincinnati and other points north and west, including Virginia cities, to Winston-Salem and Durham, North Carolina terminals of the road, gets another postponement by the Interstate Commission, this time to June 15 from May 15.

This is the case by the North Carolina Corporation Commission that is expected by the commission to give effective leverage for breaking up the discriminations in freight rates that have for so long afflicted North Carolina shipping points compared with Virginia cities. The Interstate Commission advises the Carolina Commission that this postponement is on account of the Norfolk & Western having appealed from the order of the Interstate Commission to the Commerce Court. The Carolina Commission is advised that the argument before the Commerce Court will take place just as soon as possible after the court convenes May 17. This additional postponement comes as a distinct disappointment to the Corporation Commission, the commissioners having believed fully that the railroad companies had played their last card and were right up to the point of having to observe the order of the Interstate Commission.

SENATE CHANGES THE HOUR FOR CONVENING.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, May 4.—Senator Bailey won a long drawn out fight today when he succeeded in having the Senate change the hour of convening from noon until 2 p. m. The rule will be in effect until otherwise changed.

EDITORS WILL MEET IN JUNE

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 4.—President M. L. Shipman, of the North Carolina Press Association, announces that the annual session of the association scheduled for the week of June 20 at Lenoir, is postponed to the week of June 27. This is on account of the meeting of the North Carolina Bankers' Association and the North Carolina Merchant's Association at Hendersonville during the week of June 20 and also on account of the session of the Baptist World Alliance to be in session in Philadelphia on conflicting days, a number of the editors desiring to attend this convention. The program for the sessions beginning June 27 is being made up rapidly now. Among those who have agreed to participate and their subjects are: Editor Wade Harris, of The Chronicle, Charlotte, "Cash Basis for The Newspaper"; Editor J. J. Farriss, of The High Point Enterprise, "The Open Door"; Joseph Hyde Pratt, State Geologist, "State Supervision of Public Roads"; W. P. Few, President of Trinity College, "The Newspaper and Public Opinion"; Editor W. C. Dowd, Charlotte News, "Best Method of Securing and Retaining Local Advertising"; Dr. John A. Ferrall, hookworm specialist, "Results of the Success of the Hookworm Campaign."

AVERAGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL PER MAN.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—If you cannot run your hand into your pocket and haul forth a roll of $34.55 you are not financially an average man. A statement just issued by the United States treasury department gives that amount as the per capita circulation, basing the figures upon an estimated population of May 1, 1911, of 93,705,000. The department showed that on that date there was a general stock of money amounting to $3,548,574,337, which included $408,930,220 held in the treasury and $3,237,638,117 in circulation.

TAFT MAY REVIEW PARADE.

Every President Since Grant Has Seen March of Sunday School Children. Washington, May 4.—Representative Calder, of Brooklyn, received a tentative promise from President Taft today to witness the annual parade of Brooklyn Sunday school children, June 8. Mr. Calder said 200,000 children would be in the parade. Every President of the United States since Grant's time has witnessed these parades.

PANIC FOLLOWED FIRE IN NEW YORK FACTORY

Special to Telegram.

New York, May 4.—Between thirty and forty girls and women were injured, a number of them seriously, during a panic which followed a fire at the factory of Leon Pearl, a ribbon establishment, at 550 Broadway, this afternoon as the employees were leaving the factory.

An awning caught in the rear of the building and caused the alarm. One thousand fled in a panic from the building, tearing away the railings from the doors, fearing a repetition of the horrible affair here several weeks ago. Many had their clothes torn off in the rush and scores were knocked down. The injured were trampled over by those who kept on their feet as if they were devoid of feeling. Guards at the windows prevented employees from leaping out.

Children March From Burning School Building.

Special to Telegram.

Brooklyn, May 4.—When the smoke from a fire on the first floor of the Stagg Street, Brooklyn School floated into the rooms on the second floor this afternoon a number of the teachers started music and others gave the fire drill. Fifteen hundred children marched out without injury, owing to their perfect discipline.

The Telegram's Phone is No. 59.

The Telegram is entered at the Post-office in Greensboro, North Carolina, for transmission through the mails as Second Class Matter.

If "money talks" it should have much to say about the Lorimer case, as money was undoubtedly responsible for his election.

The Danbury Reporter's editorials are set double column and in poster type. The Reporter is bound to bring its opinions to the attention of its readers.

The Third National Peace Conference is in session in Baltimore. Now that the elections are over most any town in North Carolina would be a proper place for the assembling of a peace conference.

An Alabama negro, sentenced to serve fifteen years in the penitentiary and paroled on condition of good behavior, is in prison again. His parole was revoked for chicken stealing. No little thing like fifteen years in the penitentiary will deter the average negro from appropriating chickens when the opportunity to do so is offered.

One of the Telegram's weekly contemporaries has an editorial entitled "The Weather Situation." That is a most difficult subject for a weekly to handle. It is difficult for a daily paper to discuss the weather, because the weather is likely to change before the paper can be printed and distributed to its readers.

THE NATIONAL GOOD ROADS CONGRESS.

It is estimated that three thousand delegates will attend the National Good Roads Congress, which assembles in Birmingham the latter part of this month. Among the delegates and visitors to the Congress will be some of the most distinguished citizens of the United States, including statesmen and men prominent in educational and business affairs. Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, State Geologist of North Carolina, has accepted an invitation to address the Congress. His subject will be "State Supervision of Public Roads."

The Guilford County Good Roads Association has appointed delegates to attend the Birmingham meeting, the delegates being President Lindley and Secretary Trogon and the Editor of The Telegram. It is hoped that at least one of this county's representatives will be able to attend the Congress; and in case Guilford is represented, it is the intention to do some advertising in Birmingham of this county's good roads. Views of Guilford roads will be shown and steps taken to bring before the thousands of good roads advocates assembled in Birmingham the fact of the superiority of this county's roads. Guilford undoubtedly leads all the counties of this State in road building and there are few counties in the South able to make a better showing or to boast of finer roads. At the Good Roads Congress due attention will be directed to these facts by the Guilford delegates.

OLD NEWSPAPER FILES PASS TO CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY.

The State of Georgia has lost one of the most valuable newspaper files in existence. This was the issues of the Augusta Chronicle from its first number in 1786 up to 1909, with the exception of the issues for five years, which are missing from this collection. The papers have passed to the ownership of the Library of Congress in Washington City.

The sale was made by Terance Doonan of Atlanta, who acquired them from a man who had owned them for upwards of 40 years—an old bookman and junk dealer of Macon.

Mr. Doonan bought these files for $1,000 and held them for several years until he was able to negotiate a sale to the national library, which paid him $7,500 for them. It is said the Library of Congress has a rule in accordance with which it pays $1 an issue for desirable old files back of 1800. But in this case an exception was made and for the oldest of the files $5 an issue was paid. The Chronicle was not then, however, a daily paper.

The man from whom Mr. Doonan bought the files, it is said, purchased them from a former editor of the Chronicle about 40 years ago for $50. It is also stated that the Chronicle at one time endeavored to recover these files, but thought the price at which the owner then held them, said to have been $200, was too high.

Possibly there was no more valuable set of newspaper files in the South than these. They included the very first issues of the Chronicle, October, 1786, right on through to 1790, and the years 1801, 1802, 1803, 1806, 1807, 1808 and 1809.

The Chronicle was then the official paper of the State, and in it were published not only the usual official announcements, but also all acts of the legislature and reports of the house and senate committees. Its contents thus make it of great historical value, particularly as they include also the reports of the constitutional conventions of 1788-89 and of 1798.

The Augusta Chronicle has its files now for a little more than 100 years back, but the most valuable of them will now remain for all time with the Library of Congress in Washington.

WHAT NORTH CAROLINA EDITORS ARE SAYING.

Getting Ahead of The Telegram.
Merely to cut the Greensboro Telegram out of fiendish joy at perpetrating such why we wish to remark that Hyde's was a skin-game.—Wilmington Dispatch.

The Rural Patrolmen of Charlotte.
The Charlotte News is claiming that one of their "rangers" has been awarded a Carnegie hero medal. We understand the medal is for covering the most rural territory of any city policeman in the United States.—Raleigh Times.

Plans for Solving the Senate Problem.
Congressman Berger wants to shove the United States Senate off the earth. Better plan would be to shove a number of Senators into political oblivion and place some good men in their seats.—Greensboro Telegram.

The Telegram has the matter sized up right. All of the Republicans, except possibly one or two to furnish a little amusement should be pushed out and good Democrats put in their places. Then, we might possibly spare a few of the Democrats, and if their States can't do better than they have been doing we might let their seats remain vacant.—Raleigh Times.

A Healthy Superintendent.

The Guilford county commissioners have decided that the county needs a superintendent of health to devote all his time to the duties of the office, and to that end have appropriated $2,500 for the salary and expenses of such an official. We look forward to a time when every county in the State shall have such a department. The office, as contemplated by the Guilford commissioners, will be much wider than that filled by the old county physician, a familiar figure in many Southern States. This functionary is merely physician to the poor, and, useful as he has often proved, is not expected to be a leader of the people in health matters. His meager salary is usually well-earned if he takes care of the medical needs of the destitute.

A county superintendent of health is a very different figure. His remuneration is to be set at such a sum as will enable him to devote his best effort to developing the large possibilities of his office. He will be given opportunity to come into intimate contact with the high school pupils of the county and it will be one of his most important duties to see to it not only that the sanitary arrangements of the schools are up to the standard but that the boys and girls enrolled are taught the rudimentary principles, at any rate, of the science of sanitation. It will not be necessary to make them sanitary experts; there are a large number of simple facts connected most vitally with the matter of community health which have long been neglected in our school courses.

If the new official shall be able to remedy this neglect and to do little else, his salary and expenses will be found a most excellent investment of the county funds.

When the office shall have become systematized, as it were, institutes for adults, organized on the lines so successfully adopted for the farmers' institutes, will be a logical step. These are but suggestions as to the possibilities contained in germ in the Guilford innovation. The details will be developed as the experiment is put into actual practice. It appears that the next decade holds splendid possibilities of advance for the people of this State. With the health of these people bettered, the limit to their possibilities will be still further enlarged.—Raleigh Times.

Southern Fire Insurance.

More than thirty-five insurance companies domiciled in the South have begun a movement in behalf of their own interests and are asking the people of the South to support this movement. Their principal purpose in this working together is to obtain a greater share of the fire insurance business of the South. They are depending wholly upon "the integrity of their contracts" and the known facts of their underwriting ability for the additional business they would do. As the Louisville Courier-Journal puts it: "There has been manifested no disposition to exploit the fact that blood is thicker than water." The companies interested have contented themselves with showing that five premiums kept at home enlarge the circulation of money in the South and assist very materially in the development of that section, provided that the home companies are given all the business they can write.

The most trustworthy fire insurance statistics show that during the last three decades fourteen Southern States paid $707,698,387 for fire protection. Of this sum, only $68,181,112 was paid to companies domiciled in these States, while the tremendous balance of $639,517,275 went to the North and to Europe, leaving not even the most indirect of advantages to the section that produced and paid out the money. These figures "may well interest not only Southern underwriters, but Southern financiers and other men of affairs as well."

The territory now covered by the association referred to comprises Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida. It is the intention of the organization to extend the area of its operations to include Kentucky, Tennessee and Texas, so that fifty companies shall benefit by the efforts of the association and more than $25,000,000 of capital and assets be represented. Complete cooperation between members is being practiced, and even the few Southern companies not members of the association are enjoying some advantage from the movement.

The underwriting record of the Southern companies upon which is based the chief argument in their campaign for Southern business, is a strikingly clean and honorable one when compared with the experience of the country as a whole. Searching scrutiny of the records of Southern companies that retired from the field during the last thirty years shows a very small financial loss, and that loss was borne almost entirely by the stockholders. The only loss to policy-holders of any consequence is chargeable to the San Francisco disaster, and in that case the Southern company involved settled with its San Francisco policy-holders upon a much more generous basis than many of the Northern and European companies, though the settlement cost the company its existence.

A great majority of Southern companies which retired during the past thirty years did so under full liquidation to their stockholders, and in many cases they liquidated at a considerable premium above par. The number of Southern companies which liquidated in that period was not nearly so great proportionately as the number of Eastern and Northern companies when, for one reason or another, they went out of business.

The case for the Southern companies involves two considerations: First, the benefit to the South through circulation of money at home; second, the certainty of protection they afford as shown by their record in the past. These two reasons should commend the movement to the careful consideration of the people of the South.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The annual banquet of the Society of Royal Teutons was waxing old, and the waiters held close vigil over the silverware. Brauer espied Schintz dexterously slip the diminutive spoon from the saucer of a demi-tasse into the secret recesses of a breast pocket.

The demon of avarice was aroused, but the watchful eyes of the waiters barred emulation. Brauer arose in his place at the table.

"Loidies undt chentlemen," began Brauer, "I show you a trick. To show I am no cheat or savindler, I pull up my sleeves. So."

"Now I tolke dis leetle spoon from my cup undt I put it in mine coat pocket. So. Now I hold up both hands undt walk around der table to Mr. Schnitz. So. Now I put mine handt in Mr. Schnitz's pocket undt I tolke out der leetle spoon. Dere, loidies undt chentlemen! So."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ## ARE YOU AN "ABSTRACT"?

(By CARA REESE.)
You better float right in and east your lot with the "abstracts." The minute a human being begins to querulously complain of the trials and troubles of existence he or she better apply for membership in the "abstracts."

The "abstracts" are those who abstract the mind from the difficulties of existence. If the laundryman leaves the wrong package just let the package stand until he comes for it. If the department store sends your drygoods all over town and takes a week to find you, keep away from the telephone. If breakfast is over before the milk bottle arrives, or luncheon and dinner have long passed and still no meat or ordered stuff, pay no attention.

Or, if the house be in a state of confusion and upheaval incident to housecleaning or moving, take no notice and the same with the joys and pleasures of life, be unmoved in the midst of festivities, feasts and celebrations. Take no interest in the everyday happenings. Give no thought to the "opposite." It is the "opposites" that make all the troubles in life. There are pleasure and pain, riches and poverty, smiles and tears, overwork and no work, births and deaths, fulfillment or lack of fulfillment. Keep clear of the "opposites." When you cast in your lot with the "abstracts" you are through forever with "pairs."

Hence the "abstracts" are never hot nor cold, they never freeze nor thaw, they never have toothache nor indigestion nor the joy of having the molar extracted or of chewing gum of a sweet-scented flavor. The "abstracts" are without any relation or application to things or sensations. The "abstracts" are in a state of separation and inattention. Their one attitude is that of subjective contemplation and reflection.

So, if you are tired of battling with existence and its "opposites" of heat and cold, joy and sorrow, plenty and poverty, rush or enforced lethargy, even love and hate, you know what you can do, you can cast in your lot with the "abstracts," and after that "nothing whatever shall hurry, worry or flurry you any more. Some heartless ones who are still willing to jolt back and forth amid the "opposites" of existence lack the membership by another term, namely, the "abstracts" or more euphoniously, the "distracted." The difference is slight. Both have reached Nirvana.

However, there is this good word to say regarding the "opposites." The rector said it on Easter Sunday. Said he, "this should be a strong argument that there is a life hereafter, the fact that men have been unable in this present existence to work out ideals to the limit of their capabilities. One man has the making of a great sculptor within him, another the making of a great painter, or a great writer, or a great inventor, but each is handicapped and hindered by the pressure of existence. Will not a future life afford the opportunity?" Hence, try the "opposites" a little while longer. But if you still feel miserable remember that the "abstracts" are round the corner.

THE MEXICAN SPHINX.

SOME ROYAL TREASURES

(By ROBERT SNOWDEN.)
The little boy Shah of Persia owns a pipe, smoked by his father on State occasions, which is set with diamonds, rubies and emeralds, to the value, it is asserted, of no less than $500,000. This pipe of the ex-shah is many times more valuable than his sword, which is set down at the comparatively insignificant figure of $40,000.

The Gaekwar of Baroda, an advanced Indian Prince, is the possessor of what is probably the most precious blade in existence. Its hilt and belt are encrusted with diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds, and its value is stated to be something like $1,000,000. There are some costly swords in the treasure rooms of Asian and European potentates, notably those belonging to the Czar of Russia, the Sultan of Turkey, and the King of Siam; but this sword of the Gaekwar outshines them all.

The most valuable sword in Europe is that presented by the Egyptians to Lord Wolseley. The hilt is set with brilliants, and the whole saber is valued at $10,000.

Another Indian ruler, the Maharajah of Ghendel, owns the finest brougham in the world. The handles of the doors are of solid gold, while the rest of the carriage is silver.

The new Emperor of Morocco came into possession of a curious piano, manufactured to the order of his predecessor, which is probably the most costly instrument of the kind ever made. This piano was made in parts, each being small enough to be carried by a slave, as it appeared that the former emperor firmly refused to trust them to the care of his camels, which formed the only other available means of transport. This exceedingly expensive musical instrument was made principally of tulip and orris woods, inlaid with unpolished jacaranda parquetry, and decorated with scroll work of pure gold. The actual sum paid for it was $20,000.

WARNING TO RAILROAD MEN.

E. S. Bacon, 11 East St., Bath, Me., sends out this warning to railroad men: "As conductor on the railroad, my work caused a chronic inflammation of the kidneys, and I was miserable and all played out. A friend advised Foley Kidney Pills and from the day I commenced taking them, I began to regain my strength. The inflammation cleared and I am far better than I have been for twenty years. The weakness and dizzy spells are a thing of the past and I highly recommend Foley Kidney Pills."

The Mule Ran Away.

A countryman came to the town and saw a watermelon for the first time. "What is that?" said he.

"It is a mule's egg," was the reply. The countryman bought the watermelon, and started for home. On the way the watermelon fell from the donkey's back and broke open. Just at that moment a hare crossed the road.

"There goes my mule," said the countryman.

"Oh, my dear wife," he said, later on, when he reached home, "I bought a beautiful mule's egg in the town, but I was most unfortunate on the way, for the egg broke, and the little mule came out and ran away."

Matching For a Dog

It Seemed the Only Way to Determine Its Ownership

By F. A. MITCHEL
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A boy of seven on being told to write a story about a dog wrote it as follows:

I love Rex, and Rex loves me. That was all there was of the composition.

Shep was a collie dog, and a very intelligent one. The only other case I have ever known of equal love between a human being and a brute was between my pointer Rex and myself. I used Rex for hunting woodcock. How I did love that dog, and how he did love me! Why in the world he couldn't speak to me I don't know. He could talk with his eyes, though not with his tongue. Many a conversation I have had with him, I speaking with my voice, he with his eyes.

Rex was stolen from me, and I didn't see him again for several years. One October I was hunting in another field. I had possessed other dogs than Rex, but did not get attached to any of them, and often would hunt without one. This was the case with me on this autumn morning. As I stalked through a wood, kicking up dead leaves—a favorite amusement of mine—I heard some animal bounding toward me, and through the bushes between the trees came a dog. I recognized Rex at once. He ran to me, put his fore paws on my shoulder, and if ever a dog cried for joy he did. As for me, I put my arms around his neck, and I'm not sure but my eyes, too, were wet.

"CALL HIM, PLEASE"

The next thing I was conscious of was looking at a very pretty girl with a big hat on her head, a pair of gauntlets on her hands and a whip such as ladies use when walking out with a dog. I lifted Rex's paws from my shoulders and my hat from my head. There was fire in the girl's eyes which my deference did not allay.

"What's the matter with my dog?" she snapped, laying great stress on the word "my."
"Your dog?"
"Yes, my dog. Whose else should it be?"
"Mine."

What a laugh came out of that pretty throat! It wasn't really a laugh, but an expression of anger, contempt, irony, derision. I confess I was a bit miffed by it.

"You say the dog is yours," I said, trying to speak pleasantly. "If he is yours he will follow his mistress. Call him, please."

"Jack! Come here. Jack! Do you hear me?"

Rex looked at her and wagged his tail, but did not move.

"You don't even know the dog's name," I said. Then, moving away, I called, "Come, Rex," and he bounded after me. But I noticed that he kept looking back at his mistress. After moving some twenty paces I stopped.

If ever there was a mad girl that one was.

"How dare you try to steal my dog?" she snapped viciously.

"Steal your dog? I don't need to steal your dog. He knows his master and follows him."

"Jack! Come here." She stamped her little foot in a vain attempt to enforce obedience.

"Let me have your whip," I said. "I'll see if I can drive him back to you."

I took the whip from her hand and, giving the dog a cut, ordered him away from me. He got down on the ground and cringed and whined, but he wouldn't leave me. The girl was beside herself with anger and disappointment. It was plain that she loved him as well as I did.

"Pardon me," I said to her. "I should have explained to you that this dog once belonged to me. I lost him, and he now appears to be your property. He's the nearest to a human being of any brute I ever knew."

"He isn't a brute; he's a human animal."
"And should be treated as a human animal. His affections should not be interfered with."
"Nor my affections either."
"He should be permitted to dwell with the one he loves best."
This was a thrust that didn't suit her. "You mean," she said, "that he should live with the one who loves him best?"
"Very brightly turned, but woman's logic—a conclusion based on no premises. It seems to me this is a triangular affair."

She opened her eyes, as if wondering what that could be.
"You love the dog; I love the dog. The dog loves you and loves me. One leg of the triangle is missing."
"Which leg? What leg?"

"The one between you and me. There is love between you and the dog and love between me and the dog, but none whatever between you and me."

"I should think not!"
I repressed a smile. "Well," I said, "what are we going to do about it?"
"I bought Jack—Jack, I say. He is not Rex, as you call him, at all. I bought Jack for $10, and he's my dog."

"I didn't get the $10."
"That's nothing to me."
"I'll match you for him."

Now, while by matching her for the dog I meant to play at heads and tails with a coin, she was so pretty, so feminine in her bursts of impotent anger, that in my heart I intended to convey the impression that I wouldn't mind settling the ownership of the dog by a union of claimants.

"What do you mean by matching for him?" she asked.

I took two coins from my pocket and gave her one, laid the other covered on the back of my hand and asked her to show one side of the coin I had given her. She showed me "heads." I uncovered my coin, and it was "tails."

"The dog is mine," I said.
Again she bristled.

"You were to match me and failed," I added.

"Well, I declare!"
She could not evidently find words to express her horror and contempt at my taking such an advantage of her. She tossed the coin at me viciously, but I caught it.

"That method of deciding the matter between us doesn't seem to please you."

"I should say not. Besides, there's nothing to decide. The dog belongs to me."

"But how are you to prevent his going home with me? You saw that I couldn't drive him away."

This was a stumper. She made no reply. She was evidently trying to think of a way out of it.

"You will tire yourself standing," I said. "Won't you be seated on this log?"

"No, I thank you."
"Then you will pardon me for sitting while you stand. I'm very tired, and I see no way of coming to an agreement."

I sat down, took a pipe from my pocket and proceeded to fill it, asking if she would mind my smoking. She did not reply, and since silence gives consent I lit the pipe.

"I suppose," she said presently, "I'll have to pay you for the dog. It's very mean of you, but—"

"I don't wish to sell him."

"Then what in the world are we going to do?"

"I think we'd better have a conference."

"We seem to be having one, a very long and disagreeable one."

"If you will sit down and talk reasonably I believe we can come to a satisfactory agreement."

She looked a long while at the log and finally sat down on its other end.

"Now," I said, puffing a cloud, "what do you propose?"

"What do you propose?"

"I proposed a match, but you didn't appear to like that way."

"It's perfectly absurd."

"Nevertheless I'm quite resolved that it shall be settled by that plan."

She thought for some time while I read what she was thinking in the expression of her face. By matching she would have an equal chance of winning the dog. By refusing she would surely lose him, for he would go with me. I got out the coins again.

"I match you this time," I said. "Best two in three."

She sat looking straight ahead of her, not deigning to notice the coin I had laid out on the log for her. Glancing at it, I saw "heads" was up. I cried "tails!" Then, examining her coin and mine, I told her she had won on the first trial. This induced her to take some interest in the proceedings. I took care that she should win again and told her the dog was her property.

"But how am I to get him away from you?" she said in a more pleasant, but puzzled tone.

"I don't see how you can," I replied, "unless I go with you."

"That's the plan," she said, much pleased. "You go with me, and I'll chain him to his kennel."

"Are you sure you won't chain me too?"

"How ridiculous!"
It certainly was ridiculous, for she had me chained already, but I wasn't locked for a year afterward, when my matching plan, as I really intended it, was carried out and the dog passed into our united possession. All of which was nice for the dog, nice for the girl and lastly delightful for me. I often twit my wife upon her stupidity in not having understood my double meaning on our first meeting, whereupon she says she saw through the whole thing.

And I'm not quite sure but she did.

THE KITCHEN

A Cup Pudding.

One cup of flour, one cupful of suet, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of milk, one cupful of breadcrumbs, one cupful of strawberry jam, half a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda. Mix well, and boil three hours in a well greased basin.

Stuffed Potatoes.

Choose some nice large potatoes and bake them. When quite done cut off an end and scoop out some of the inside. Fill up the hole with some cold meat chopped fine, season with pepper, salt and mace made into a paste with gravy. With the aid of the white of an egg, stick the end on again and bake for five minutes.

Ground Rice Sandwich.

Our eggs, half a pound of sugar, half a pound of rice. Beat the eggs for 10 minutes, then dredge in the sugar; beat for 10 minutes longer, and lastly add ground rice, again beating for 10 minutes. Bake in a sandwich tin for one hour in a slow oven.

Cheese Soufflé.

Yolks of four eggs, four ounces of grated cheese, one tablespoonful of flour, half a pint of milk. Put the yolks of the eggs in a basin with a little cayenne, salt, flavor and cheese. Work all together with a spoon until quite smooth; beat up the whites of the eggs to a stiff and add with the milk to the other ingredients. Pour into a deep buttered pie dish and bake.

Tomato Sauce.

Take tomatoes when perfectly ripe, put them into an earthenware pot and set them in an oven after the bread has been drawn. Let them continue there until they have become perfectly soft, then separate the skins from the pulp, and mix with capers, vinegar, and a few cloves of garlic (pounded), a little powdered ginger, and salt to taste. Put the mixture into a small wide-mouthed bottle, cork them well, and keep them in a dry and cool place. White vinegar, with cayenne pepper, may be used in the place of capers and vinegar.

French Aviator Carries Twelve In His Monoplane Over Paris

M. LOUIS BREGUET, a French aviator, recently broke all records by flying over Paris with eleven passengers in his monoplane. With the aviator this made twelve persons, their combined weight being 1,390 pounds. Three of the passengers were adventurous boys, and the number was thus increased without adding tremendously to the weight of the load. The flight was made over a section of Paris, and two miles were covered in four minutes. During the flight the machine did not ascend more than fifty feet. Breguet also holds the record for speed with a passenger, having traveled a fraction more than fifty-three miles an hour for 100 kilometers, about sixty-two miles. He uses a monoplane of his own invention and has proved to be one of the most successful and daring air men in Paris since he got his aviator's license a year ago. The French government has recently ordered several of Breguet's machines. They are made almost entirely of steel and are so constructed that they can be taken to pieces in a few minutes for expeditious military transportation. The pictures above show Breguet in flight with eleven passengers and the way in which ten of them were crowded into his machine.

Yesterday's Session Of Municipal Court

In Municipal Court yesterday morning Frank Boyd was arraigned on the charge of shooting Eva Evans, the specific charge being assault with a deadly weapon. After hearing the evidence Judge Eure decided that he was not guilty of an assault. The woman was taxed with the costs. It developed that the woman first drew a gun on Boyd and as soon as she let the muzzle fall Boyd used his pistol with good effect. The court held that Boyd fired in self-defense.

Boyd was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon, in this case a fine of $25 and costs being imposed.

THE GOBLINS OF COLOGNE.

Long ago in the Rhine city of Cologne lived some good natured goblins that now and then appeared to mortal eyes and were always trying to make happier the troubled lives of human beings. In the grove and woodland caverns they had handsome homes of their own, wherein they dwelt and watched over the great treasures of the mines of the earth. Not infrequently these kindly elves were busy miners, and sometimes they were skillful artisans. As everybody knows, 'twas they who manufactured the precious trinkets and arms of the Nibelung treasure.

Way down deep in the heart of the earth they lived together happily, and a king ruled over them. Nevertheless the goblins did not stay underground all the time. On the contrary, frequently they came to the surface of the earth through certain holes which the people of the neighborhood called "goblin holes." Always, however, they took care never to meet human beings.

These merry little fellows were of different sizes. Some of them were no bigger than one's thumb. Others were as large as the hand of a child four years old.

Now, in the time of our story there lived in the beautiful city of Cologne a host of these friendly dwarfs, and the honest townspeople had many a tale to tell about them. Workmen and artisans especially gained through help of the friendly wights many more holidays than the calendar marked down for them.

For example, when the carpenters would throw themselves back on their benches for a snooze these little men

THE LITTLE MEN SLIPPED ON THE PEAS, came along swiftly and steadily, took up the neglected tools and worked away with a will, chiseling, sawing and hammering, so that by the time the carpenters woke up again their task was well nigh finished.

No less did the cooper enjoy, and the tailor even had no cause to complain of their neglecting him.

Indeed, the story goes that it was through a tailor or, rather, through his wife that the city of Cologne lost the help of the friendly dwarfs. This is the way that it came about:

Mr. Cotton, the best tailor in the city, was honored by an order to make a Sunday coat for the mayor of the town. Diligently he worked at his task; but, as you could easily understand, in the heat of the afternoon he presently began to nod and nod, and he fell fast asleep. Hark! What sound is that? Look there! One little goblin after another crept cautiously from his nook in the tailor shop, where he hid himself away when there was anybody by to see. All the little goblins climbed on the table and began to do the tailor's work. Clever little goblins that they were, they sewed and stitched and fitted and pressed as if they had been sewing for a tailor all their lives, so that when Master Cotton awoke by and by, to his great surprise and joy, he found the mayor's Sunday coat already made and so neatly finished that he could present the handsome garment to its owner with justifiable pride.

But Mr. Cotton's pretty wife smiled to herself as she saw this masterpiece of her husband's art. She thought she knew how the work had been done so quickly, and she made up her mind to find out.

That night when her husband was sound asleep she slipped out of bed without making any noise and scattered peas all over the floor of the workshop. Then she put on the table a half finished suit. All the time she carried a small lantern hidden under her apron. She took her place behind the door and stood there listening.

It wasn't long before the workshop was full of little men all tumbling and falling and slipping over the peas. Little voices screamed and yelled, for the poor little goblins were all of them bruised and many of them were hurt. They didn't wait a minute, but ran downstairs as fast as they could and left the tailor's house.

The tailor's wife, hiding behind the door, heard the noise and thought it all fine fun. The clamor grew, and she thought she would open the door quickly and see the goblin visitors, but she was just too late. They had all gone. Not a single one was left behind.

And never since then have the friendly dwarfs helped the people of Cologne, and now they have even disappeared from other places.—Chicago Tribune.

The Veteran, the Lion Cub and The Princess Lwoff-Parlaghy

GENERAL DANIEL E. SICKLES, sole surviving corps commander of the two great armies that began an awful war half a century ago, is as gallant as he was when he first donned a uniform. Hearing that the Princess Lwoff-Parlaghy had tried in vain to buy a lion cub from the Barnum & Bailey circus, he began negotiations himself and got the animal for $250. It was offered to him as a gift, but he insisted on paying for the cub, which was six weeks old. Then he telephoned to the princess, and when she reached Madison Square Garden, in New York, where the circus was quartered, she found the old soldier with the cub in his lap. "It is yours," he told her. Then the soldier, the cub and the princess were photographed together. The princess, who is a painter of note, departed a day or two later for Europe, taking the cub, which had been named "General Sickles," with her. She says she will paint a picture of the cub and its donor to be called "The Two Lions." The circus management did not care to part with the cub, which is a particularly fine specimen, and the offer of the princess was refused, but when General Sickles expressed a desire to own the cunning little animal the decision was reversed, though it was not known at the time what the veteran wanted with the cub.

TROLLEY

Car Crashes Into Coupe and two Women are Fatally Hurt.

The accident happened just outside the Frost residence. The coachman was turning the coupe around to the garden gate in order that the occupants might alight when the horses slipped on the trolley track and fell. A car was approaching and the brakes failed to respond to the efforts of the motorman. General Frost was walking across the lawn to meet his wife when the crash came.

MAY VOTE ON FREE LIST BILL SATURDAY.

Washington, May 4.—An attack on the Republican policy of protection marked the continuation of debate on the free list bill in the House today. Representative Clayton of Alabama, denounced the imposition of what he declared were prohibitive duties.

"The Republican party," he said, "makes a tariff to restrain the American market; to give unnatural and unequal benefits to the favored interests that have been fostered by the protective system and to allow them to exploit the American consumers by charging them excessive prices."

FINANCIAL NEUTRALITY A PREVENTATIVE OF WAR.

Baltimore, Md., May 4.—James Speyer, a New York banker, aroused much enthusiasm at the meeting of the Third National Peace Congress today when he urged that "financial neutrality" be used as a preventative of war between nations. Huntington Wilson, assistant secretary of state, defined the "dollar diplomat" of an administrative policy to be nothing more than the substitution of "dollars for bullets."

GIRL

Perished in Fire at Newark, N. J. Yesterday—Man Also Missing.

Special to Telegram. Newark, N. J., May 4.—One girl perished and a number of others were injured and one man is missing as a result of a fire in the factory of the National Fireworks Company this afternoon. A small explosion started the fire.

GOING TO SUPREME COURT

That Tribunal Will Scrutinize Georgia's Liquor Laws.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—Georgia's liquor laws will be subjected to scrutiny by the Supreme Court of the United States in a case docketed today in that court. It is the case of the State against G. W. Cureton.

The question raised is whether the Georgia law of 1907, in prohibiting the sale of liquor within the State, applies to a transaction where persons living in Alabama or Tennessee order liquor of another in Tennessee, who ships the liquor through an agent in Georgia. Cureton is charged with receiving orders and payment for liquor at his office in Tennessee and directing his agent at Rising Fawn, Ga., to ship the liquor ordered. The State law claims that Cureton thereby made a sale in Georgia. Cureton claims the sale took place in Tennessee, and, furthermore, that the Georgia law is unconstitutional because it interferes with interstate commerce.

Eight Scalded by Explosion.

Cleveland, O., May 4.—Eight men were scalded, two so seriously they may die, when the main steam pipe of a boiler on the steamer State of Ohio, operated by the Cleveland and Buffalo Transit Company exploded today.

The steamer was being overhauled and repaired in the Cleveland harbor in preparation for the first trip. Practically all the crew were aboard.

As the steamer was tied to the pier at the time of the explosion, the rescue work was greatly facilitated. Half a dozen ambulances answered a hurry call and conveyed the injured to the United States marine and Lakeside hospitals.

PRIZES FOR HEALTH ESSAYS AWARDED

Successful Contestants in Contest Inaugurated by Health Department of State Federation of Woman's Clubs.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, May 4.—Six North Carolina school children will have glad hearts this week when they receive one of the five dollar prizes for the best essay on one of the following subjects: General Sanitation, Hookworm Disease, and Tuberculosis. Two prizes were offered for the best essay on each of the subjects, one prize to go for the best essay by a child under fifteen years of age, the other for the best essay by a child over fourteen years of age. The committee awarded the prizes as follows:

General Sanitation.

Under 15 years of age, Angus Travis, Weldon, age 12.

Over 14 years of age, Rozena Penman, postoffice address not known.

Hookworm Disease.

Under 15 years of age, Sarah Richardson, postoffice address not known, age 14.

Over 14 years of age, Oliver Rand, Smithfield, age 15.

Tuberculosis.

Under 15 years of age, Edith Farmer, Raleigh, age 11.

Over 14 years of age, Inez Grace Wilkes, Chadbourn, age 16.

These prizes were offered by the health department of the State Federation of Women's Clubs through the activity of Mrs. W. N. Hutt, chairman of the Health Department, Raleigh. It is hoped to have another set of prizes offered for similar work next school term so that the school children will do well to acquaint themselves with health matters. The State Board of Health sends out free literature on request.

Mrs. Hutt will appreciate knowing the address of Sarah Richardson, or Rozena Penman.

Executive Secretary Laymen's Movement

A few months ago a conference of missionary workers was held in this city, under the direction of Messrs. J. Campbell White and Chas. H. Pratt, Secretaries of the Laymen's Missionary Movement. This meeting decided that it would be well to employ an executive secretary, in order that the plans suggested by the Laymen's Missionary Movement might be carried out to better advantage. A number of the citizens of Greensboro became responsible for the salary and expenses of the General Secretary for a few months.

Rev. John McEachern has been secured for the position and is expected to arrive on May 10th to take up the work. Mr. Chas. H. Pratt will be in Greensboro on next Monday to confer with the local committee in regard to the plan of campaign.

This is regarded as an important step in the forward movement for missions, which was inaugurated in this city during the Laymen's Convention in January last year. After completing his engagement here, it is expected that Mr. McEachern will work in other sections of the State, using the larger cities as a base.

Women and Society

Mrs. Earley, of Philadelphia, is in the city, the guest of Mrs. B. MacKenzie.

Miss Louise Troy, of Durham, is in the city, the guest of Mrs. J. W. Long, Church street.

The Gleaner Missionary Society of West Market Street church will meet in the church parlor Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Miss Woodley's Recital.

This evening at 8:30 o'clock at Greensboro Female College Miss Annie Woodley will give her graduate recital in piano. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Ice Cream Supper.

An ice cream supper will be given at the Pomona Graded School this evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Cream, cake and coffee will be served. The public is invited.

Ethridge-Newland.

Friends here have received invitations to the marriage of Miss Jo Newland, daughter of Lieutenant Governor W. C. Newland, to Mr. David M. Ethridge, of Norfolk, the marriage to take place in the Presbyterian church at Lenoir, May 17. An accompanying card reads: "At home 'Westover,' Norfolk, Va., after June 14."

Graduating Recital.

Tonight at the Normal College Miss Slaughter will give her recital.

Owing to raising the standard and creating a course in music leading to the Degree of Bachelor of Music, the Normal College has only one graduate in the music department this year. The first graduate with the degree of Bachelor of Music is Miss Huldah Slaughter and she gives her recital tonight in the auditorium of the Students building.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

There are quite a number of Juniors in the course who will be candidates for the degree next year.

Cox-Wall.

Last evening at 9:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Davis, 209 Humphrey avenue, Miss Mary Wall became the bride of John T. Cox, the ceremony being performed by Rev. E. K. McLarty, pastor of West Market Street Methodist church. Only intimate friends and relatives were present to witness the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox left last night on No. 12 for Richmond and other places. On their return they will reside at 213 East Gaston street.

The bride is from Randolph county, but for the past four years she has made Greensboro her home, at the time of her marriage holding the position of night chief operator for the Southern Bell Telephone Company. She is a charming young lady and has many friends throughout the city. Mr. Cox has been connected with the fire department of the city for the past 15 years, being at present superintendent of the fire alarm system and assistant engineer of the fire engine. In addition to this he has been commissary agent for the city and looked after the purchase of the feedstuff for the city horses. He is a popular and efficient employee and has hundreds of friends throughout the city.

COAHUIA CAPITAL MAY BE CAPTURED

Special to Telegram.

Laredo, Texas, May 4.—The insurgents today burned the railroad station at El Salado on the National railway, south of Saltillo, cut all telegraph wires and began a march towards Saltillo, a city of 30,000 inhabitants. Saltillo is the capital of Coahuila and is situated 235 miles south of Laredo. The garrison is said to number only 50 men. The city is the present terminus of the National railway's telegraph lines.

T. P. A. Men in Raleigh for Convention

Representatives of the Greensboro post of the T. P. A. who went to Raleigh yesterday to attend the State Convention of the North Carolina Division were R. N. Carrier, R. E. Steele, W. H. Lee, and E. W. McNairy. State Secretary C. C. McLean accompanied them. Among the prominent T. P. A. men who were in this city last night en route to Raleigh were State President J. J. Norman of Winston-Salem; C. F. Tomlinson of High Point, one of the national directors of the order, and C. F. Lee of Asheville, who is attorney for the North Carolina division.

AN INTIMATE INTRODUCTION TO GOVERNOR THOMAS R. MARSHALL OF INDIANA

By JAMES W. REILLY.

When Thomas R. Marshall became Governor of Indiana it was generally asserted and generally believed that he was "no politician," but merely a good, old-fashioned lawyer with ideals too impractical for modern use and a grasp of public affairs that comes from study and thought, rather than from actual experience. This belief was wide spread notwithstanding the fact that the Governor had headed a ticket which had gone down to defeat save for himself and two others, and notwithstanding the more significant fact that his own election represented a reversal in four years time of more than 100,000 votes.

Two years in office have changed this belief, however, and even the politicians of the State are willing to bow to the political wisdom of the Governor. To the politician nothing succeeds like success and the success of numerous party plans forced by the Governor has elevated him to the unquestioned and unquestionable leadership of Indiana Democracy—and this without any conscious effort on the part of the Governor to win leadership, his sole purpose throughout having been to guide his party aright.

In 1896 the Republicans swept Indiana and in 1898 they repeated the performance. This gave them two United States Senators. From that time until 1908 the Democrats were apparently in a hopeless minority. Then came the Marshall campaign, when the Democrats won the Governorship, a couple of minor State officers, and a United States Senator. This was an entering wedge which the Governor knew could be used to tear wide open the Republican party, if properly handled. His ideas, and those of the managers of his party, did not at many times coincide, but sitting in the gubernatorial chair he went ahead and administered the affairs of the State according to his own ideas, offering no compromise to those who disagreed with him, but constantly insisting that an honest difference of opinion between honest men left no room for personal animosity or factionalism. In this way the Governor preserved the friendship and admiration of those who held opposing views, but at the same time succeeded in putting his own ideas into execution.

As one after another of the Marshalls ideas "stuck" and became justified in the light of succeeding events, it became more and more apparent that the "no politician" of the Governor's office was after all no slouch in political exigencies and that his foresight and thorough knowledge of conditions and needs afforded splendid equipment for leadership. And thus it is that the Governor stands today as the undisputed leader of his party in the State, with no machine at his back, and no graveyard filled with the bones of his political enemies. And what is cherished by the Governor, far more than the leadership, is the confidence and admiration of his fellow men that he has retained throughout.

The most serious clash that the Governor has had with the managers of his party followed his suggestion, a year ago, that the Democratic State Convention nominate a United States Senator to oppose Albert J. Beveridge in the 1910 campaign. This met violent opposition, but the plan carried and was justified almost as soon as the campaign was opened. Long before election day men who had opposed the plan most bitterly, came to the Governor and graciously doffed their caps to what they called the Governor's superior political wisdom. The returns of the 1910 election are still vividly recalled by the Democrats of the country, but it may be noted in passing that Governor Marshall is not now the only Democrat in the big gray capitol building at Indianapolis. The whole State ticket, and twelve out of thirteen Congressmen were elected, the Legislature was overwhelmingly Democratic and the Hon John Worth Kern is now fighting the people's battle in the United States Senate.

Governor Marshall has pronounced views on all question and is refreshingly frank in expressing them. He feels that the people are to be trusted and that the success of a righteous cause is inevitable if the people are fully informed as to its righteousness. He therefore, boldly and clearly lets the people of Indiana know what he is doing and why. His most recent move has for its object the adoption by the State of a new constitution. Changes in the document have been needed for years because of growth and changed conditions, but repeated efforts by both political parties, singly, and even working together had met with failures. With a working Democratic majority in each branch of the General Assembly the Governor conceived the idea of asking the Assembly to present to the voters of the State, for their ratification or rejection at the election in 1912, a new Constitution, embodying the changes which had universally and by all classes been conceded as needful and preserving intact the old sections, which neither time nor growth had weakened.

Constitutional lawyers in the Republican party threw their hands up in horror and argued themselves red in the face against the proposition, but the Governor calmly retorted that the right of the people, at any time to change the method and form of their government is secured to them by the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights. He boldly defended his plan from the stump and in the press, and the valiant Democrats of the Assembly backed him up, with the result that the new Constitution is now before the people. The Democratic party stands solid in its support, and the campaign of education now being conducted throughout the State at the Governor's suggestion bids fair to reap its reward in harvest of votes two years hence. Opposition is even now melting away and the prediction has been made by Republican leaders that their party will not dare oppose the new instrument in the next campaign.

If the Governor's political philosophy were to be reduced to a single fundamental it could be expressed in a half dozen words as follows: A firm belief in the people. He thoroughly believes that the people can work out their own political salvation and that the voice of the people, when they are aroused, is the voice of God. Slumbering on their rights is, however, according to the Governor's belief, one of the weaknesses that the people are prone to develop. He has often said:

"The people must not be allowed to fall back into their sleep. They must be kept awake. They must be made to feel that this is their government. We should constantly remind the individual American that government is a matter of personal concern to him; that it is not an impersonal or impalpable something in which his interest is remote or academic. When he realizes this, as he will and must, he will make a successful effort to elect honest and fair-minded men to office. He will frankly admit that when he buys bad government he must do just what he does when he buys bad eggs—punish the grocer if he can; if not, throw the eggs away and be more careful next time. Legislate as you will, load the statute books as you please, but until we have public officials who acknowledge allegiance to nothing but the Constitution, and people who are not complacent with any other kind we will have unrest."

"The people are rapidly developing their conscience to the fact that there is no place this side of Tophet where a man can afford to be dishonest, or where he can afford to let his individual belief stand in the way of the continuance of the Republic. This indicates a return to our ancient ideals with reference to the powers and duties of public officials. They must be kept strictly within the specified limitations of their Constitutional powers."

His belief in the people to govern themselves leads the Governor to feel that there is a tendency toward too much legislation. He has repeatedly declared in his public utterances that honesty, sobriety and industry cannot be legislated into a man; that these traits must come from the man himself. He believes that the American people are "government sick." Only recently he stated, semi-seriously, in one of his addresses—

"Nowadays a man doesn't need to have a conscience. He must merely live by law. Our legislatures have given us so many laws that every citizen from the Governor to the last admitted alien may break a law every day, never know it and never do any harm. We are lashed from cradle to grave. I have no objection to political law, but in recent years the Puritanism of ancient days has broken out and we have legislated upon moral questions until a man has no legal right to enjoy his own liberty or exercise his own individuality. There is a special statute for his every act, and his life politically, economically and morally is prescribed for him."

"I cannot say that civilization is not progressing. And I believe that as it progresses written rules for conduct should decrease in number. We should stop manufacturing our laws. We should not make law violators of men who have done no real wrong. What we need is a more perfect system of law enforcement. We will not have proper respect for the law so long as there exists legal loopholes through which wealthy violators may be jammed by high-priced lawyers. Honest enforcement of the law against the rich and poor alike will obviate the apparent need of more legislation."

Close friends of Governor Marshall says that if the writing of the next Democratic National platform were left to him that document would contain three planks as follows:

A tariff for revenue only.

Honesty and economy in government.

Strict independence of the co-ordinate branches of government, particularly of the legislative and executive branches.

The Governor feels that former Democratic platforms have covered too many subjects and that needed emphasis on these three fundamental principles has been lacking.

"Will not your tariff for revenue only plank drive some Democrats out of the party?" the Governor was asked, and he answered:

"It will drive out of the party some who think they are Democrats. It will bring into the party many who hold such political belief from force of habit or by inheritance. We have heard much, particularly in the last campaign, of a third party. All this talk has come from the Republican side of the political household. This is a natural result when new alignments are the order of the day and party disintegration is at work. All parties are being affected by this disintegration. Old ties are being shaken off. New alliances are being formed. The spirit of political independence is in the air. Party solidarity has not its former weight. Men are thinking for themselves and listening less to political and business bosses. Personally, however, I do not think a new party will result. I believe that the Republican party will soon become the gathering place of all those who believe in the protective principles. It will attract all those, many of whom now profess allegiance elsewhere, who believe that government exists for the benefit and profit of the few—that its function is to aid those divinely or providentially chosen, even though such aid consists in taking away from other things belonging to them. Those opposed to this theory of government will be driven into the Democratic party."

"It is a division of the people as old as government itself. It is rapidly developing in this country. We are now, in fact, on an aristocratic basis. Special privilege is a monarchical idea. The strange thing is that many people believe they are doing right for themselves in lending support to this scheme of government. Eventually, of course, they will learn differently. That is why I am convinced that the one platform plank necessary is a tariff for revenue only. It marks plainly the division between privilege or aristocracy and popular rights of Democracy. Let us have a clean-cut fight on that issue. If we go down in defeat it then will be time enough for us to get into the world fight for trade supremacy by artificial stimulation and to acknowledge our belief in special privileges for a few. However, my study has always convinced me that in a peoples' fight the people win."

Viewed personally Governor Marshall is the personification of pure Democracy—plain, simple, direct and sincere in manner. He speaks readily and pointedly and has a homely way of expressing his homely ideas. He is a slight man of medium height, with clear blue eyes, a gray mustache and heavy iron-gray hair. Before becoming Governor he had never sought nor held political office, although he had been an active member of his party for many years. He is a native of Indiana, having been born in Wabash county in 1854. He received a common school education and was graduated from Wabash College, of which institution he is now and has been for years, a trustee. He was admitted to the practice of law on his twenty-first birthday and continued in the practice in Columbia City until he was elected Governor. His tastes are academic, good literature being a speciality with him and though not a scholar in the true sense of the word, he prides himself on knowing some Latin and Greek, even though it be little of the former and less of the latter. Reading is his chief diversion and the deeper the worries of the day the lighter the fiction of the night. He has the happy faculty of throwing off office cares upon leaving the office, and the evening of a worrisome day filled with difficult problems of State administration, will find him deeply absorbed in the intricacies of a thrilling detective story. He does not play golf nor take to outdoor sports, but he enjoys walking and spends much time in the open air. His tastes of dress and habits are very Democratic to the point, in fact, of making himself liable to criticism by persistently wearing a sack coat when the ordinary rules of convention would demand a frock. He walks to and from the office, prefers a downtown restaurant to a fashionable club for his noon day lunch, and gets more real enjoyment out of a small dinner party, with a few close friends, than from the more pretentious society functions. His domestic tastes are encouraged by Mrs. Marshall who, though a social favorite, prefers the home to society's circle. Mrs. Marshall is a woman of charming personality and much culture. She accompanies the Governor on all his trips, political, business and social, and points with pride to the fact that she and the Governor have never been separated over night during their wedded life.

Mrs. Marshall has pronounced views as to woman's rightful place in the general scheme of creation. These may in part be negatively stated: She does not view the ballot with covetous eyes. She does not beat impatient wings against the bars of convention, nor chafe mutinously at woman's restrictions. She has no burning desire to "reform" anything or anybody. Her big brown eyes have in them none of the strain that comes from brooding upon the wrongs of the poor, down-trodden sex, but only the light of a bright and cultured mind and the softly happy shine of a sweet, contented spirit. One's first thought on looking into the almost girlish face of the gracious woman is, "Ah, your lines have fallen in pleasant places!" one's second, "But you are of those to whom the pleasant things of life belong by virtue of a wholesome, unspoiled nature."

Mrs. Marshall has long been prominent in northern Indiana both socially and in club work; but the vital interests of her life have centered always in her home.—The National Monthly.

ROOSEVELT HAS MANY BACKERS

Former President Is Holding Conferences.

NOT SEEKING A NOMINATION.

He Merely Wants Republican Platform to Be So Radical Democrats Will Be Forced to Name Conservative Candidate—Some of the Strong Insurgents Object to Oyster Bay Man.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.
Washington, May 4.—(Special).—

Theodore Roosevelt may be down and out of politics, but such is not the opinion of many Republicans with whom he has been consulting during the last few months.

Men who have influence in public affairs are sent for from time to time, and they have listened to Roosevelt discourse on what he thinks should be done. Some of them agree with him on many things, but the radical views of Roosevelt on several questions have been a little more than several have been able to swallow. Now, it is not to be inferred that Roosevelt is trying to get a nomination, but he is trying to make the next platform radical enough so that there will have to be a Democratic conservative candidate.

At present there seems to be a race to see which of the two parties will be the more radical in its platform declarations next year—that is, if the progressives of the Republicans can have their way, and it appears that a radical platform is all they can get out of the national convention, for it is conceded that President Taft will be re-nominated.

Roosevelt Making Converts.

In his own way it may be said that Roosevelt is making converts of many men who are reckoned now as regular and have no particular affiliation with the insurgents. Another curious thing is that the very strong insurgents are not particularly pleased with Roosevelt. He has done many things which they think stamp him as a "trimmer." Such is the opinion of men like Cummings, La Follette and Bourne, the most pronounced leaders of the progressive faction in the senate. But there are many who are not quite so radical who are listening to and taking counsel with the ex-president.

Grounds Are Wasted.
So far as the enjoyment of the average legislator is concerned, the capitol grounds are wasted. At Ottawa the beautiful grounds surrounding the parliament buildings are used by members for recreation and pleasure. Here in Washington, although the capitol grounds are very fine, it is seldom that a member of either house is seen strolling about them or in any way taking in their beauty.

If a member of congress does not remain in the chamber listening to the proceedings he is almost sure to be in the cloakroom or in his committee room working. The capitol might just as well be in a portion of the city closely surrounded by buildings.

Public Building Reaction.
Members of congress have begun to ask themselves about the economy in so many public buildings. The time was when it was claimed that it would be economy for the government to own its buildings instead of paying rent. But that theory is now exploded.

"It costs more," said Congressman Johnson of South Carolina, "to supply the care, heat, light, fuel, janitor service and other expenses for a public building in one town that I know about than it does to maintain the same care of four different banks. The public buildings are really expensive."

Adamson Sarcastic.

Congressman Mann made a most interesting speech against the Democratic free list bill and disturbed quite a number of the majority. But Congressman Adamson followed in a speech which set them at ease. The Georgian was sarcastic.

"When I saw Mann in action," he said, "I thought it was all up with us. I went over and told Oscar Underwood that he had better withdraw the bill and give up. But Oscar seemed cool and said he guessed he'd let the debate run on for a few days. That rather reassured me, and now I think we have completely recovered from the attack of Mann and will go ahead and pass the bill."

Why He Was Outside.
Congressman Prince of Illinois was out in the capitol grounds with a constituent one day when the house was in session. "What are you doing out here?" he was asked. "Don't you know that Ollie James of Kentucky is talking in the house?"

"That's why I'm out here," sadly replied Prince. "If you listen closely you can hear him here."

James does talk very loud.

Respect For the President.
During the discussion of the Canadian reciprocity bill in the house many Republicans were obliged to take directly opposite grounds to the president, but they were generally respectful about it. "The president was misled," they said, or "the president was misinformed," or a like expression. That was in debate. In private conversation some of them said things which were more pointed and less respectful.

Care of the Weak

(By HARRIETT PRESCOTT SPOTFORD.)

It is not to be doubted that all the modern ameliorations of life, make life possible to those who in past generations would have died after a very short trial of existence. Today these same examples live, but, for all that, they have not the strength to repel diseases that are, it may be said, the result of the intrinsic weakness of their own systems, and they transmit a vitiated organism to their descendants and again lower the average of health and vitality in the whole mass.

In spite of the terrible condition of the poor, this fact reaches over and touches them at many points.

We cannot, moreover, lower the average of health without making work more difficult to do, and livelihood the harder to obtain; and here we travel in a vicious circle, for the moment we encounter the inability to obtain a livelihood in poverty we encounter sickly conditions again, brains undeveloped, and bodies poorly nourished, in crowded and poisonous neighborhoods.

It is known of every one who pays attention to the matter that extreme poverty is not favorable to the production of virtue; on the contrary, that it is the hotbed of vice, and cannot help being so.

It is equally well known that there are instances of extreme wealth of the same nature, that there is more than one noble family in Europe and wealthy families here notorious for one vicious trait, and where the case is not so bad as this, in many instances the families die out and become extinct through too great indulgence in luxury.

Yet for one such case among those in affluent circumstances there are countless ones to be found among the so-called pauper class. Be they rich or poor, the intemperate and profligate, owing to their infringement on the laws of nature, will leave few of their race and name behind them; and these are more likely than not to continue the sins and crimes, and so make sin hereditary.

When the profligate rich continue to exist, it is because of an extraordinary original strength in the race, making a vitality hard to overcome; yet they choose heiresses, the fact of whose wealth shows that they are the only daughters of their parents, and whose mothers, perhaps, were only daughters before them, if anything may be inferred from the accumulation of money in their single hands; and the pair start housekeeping with a hereditary tendency to keep their numbers small while the tendencies of their manner of life are to disease and early death. Of course, it will be claimed that they are those exceptions which prove the rule.

"Finds" Scintillate Brightly For Awhile, but Go Out Quick.

"JIGGS" DONAHUE AN EXAMPLE

Former Guardian of First Base For White Sox, Sprang Into Fame at Once, Then Slumped as Quickly. Steady and Reliable Players Go on Year After Year.

The greater the star the quicker the fall seems to be a cardinal principle in baseball. The good average player goes along year after year, sticking to the same old pace and holding on to his job by steady, grinding work. The star, however, lives up to his name. He shines and flashes and dies out almost in a breath.

There are many who could be named to illustrate the example. Nealon, the Pirate first baseman of three or four years ago, was one. On the coast he bloomed up in a day almost, and the crowds went wild over his sensational play. Then Pittsburgh grabbed him up at the highest price ever paid for a minor leaguer, and he rose to his height and fell back into mediocrity in the short space of six months. The Pirates couldn't get rid of him quickly enough, and you never hear of him as a ball player after that.

"Jiggs" Donahue, once of the Chicago Sox, is another. After playing average ball for several seasons in the minors he suddenly sprang into fame as a first sacker who "ate 'em up." So Comiskey grabbed him off, and he lasted for a very few years. In the world series of 1906 his work was the sensation against the Cubs. That was the supreme time of his baseball life. The following season he fell off badly, and an average steady going fellow, Isbell, supplanted him. "Jiggs" was given a tryout this spring by the Sox and was recently released.

Take the steady fellows, who can generally be relied on in pinches. There are scores of them, and their careers always are long and honorable in the majors. Stovall of Cleveland, Crawford of the Tigers, Dougherty of the Sox, Schulte of the Cubs, Stahl of the Red Sox and Wallace of the Browns are examples. They have seen many stars come and go, but are clinging to their positions and will keep them for years to come in all probability.

Sometimes men of this type are compelled to sit on the bench for awhile, while one of the "comets" takes his place. But you find them back again at the old stand before they have been missed long. They fall right back, and things go along smoother, although not perhaps as sensationally.

Change of environment works wonders with pitchers as a rule. There is such a thing as being too long with one team. It is also true that some twirlers can work better with one team than with another. This was especially true with Overall. He was a wonderful pitcher when with Cincinnati, but didn't like his surroundings. Right when he joined the Cubs he fell into his stride, and he was responsible for a number of victories for them.

Cliff Curtis of the Boston Nationals is another example. Cliff pitched for Milwaukee for a long time. He was regarded as a fair man, but the Brewster fans didn't care much for him. The reason was he couldn't play his game in Milwaukee. To make a long story short, the Doves got hold of him last year, and the transformation was wonderful. He copped one game in Chicago in a manner that left no doubt of his ability to befuddle champions. He looked about as good as any twirler on Boston's staff.

Pitchers are not the only players who profit by changes. There is Delahanty, who now is with Detroit. He plays with much more ambition and life than when he was with Washington. Bresnahan has done yeoman service since leaving the New York Giants and joining the St. Louis Cardinals.

BARGER HAS HIS OWN IDEAS.

Insists He Must Cover First When Baseman Is Fielding Bunt.

Pitcher Cy Barger of Brooklyn has opinions of his own regarding inside baseball, especially that relating to fielding sacrifice bunts. He says the second baseman ought never to cover the initial bag when the first sacker is fielding the bunt. The second baseman, in his opinion, should be free to cover his position, while the pitcher should be there to make the put-out at first. The only reason why all teams let their second baseman cover, according to Cy, is because one club started it and the rest follow suit. He gives orders that he will do the covering whenever he pitches and guarantees that he will never miss a play. He is a quick starter for the bag and says it is all in that start.

Steinfeldt Is Not So Old.

While termed an old timer, Harry Steinfeldt, who was recently released by the Cubs to St. Paul, is far from a ripe age. He was born in St. Louis, Sept. 29, 1873; hence he has yet to reach his thirty-fifth birthday. On the other hand, Wagner was thirty-seven on Feb. 24 last, and the Teuton is not ready to step out.

NO CHANCE FOR EARL MACK TO PLAY WITH FATHER'S CHAMPIONS.

There is just one young baseball player who is doomed never to play with the Athletics as a regular while Connie Mack is manager of the team. The young man is Earl Mack, son of Connie Mack, the first and only. True, Earl played in one championship game in the American league last fall, but that was just a special occasion. "Some people think that Earl is going to become a catcher for the Athletics some day," said Connie, "but they are mistaken. Earl hasn't a chance of playing with my team. It doesn't do to mix up family affairs with business. Naturally I want to see my boy at the top of the profession, but if he ever gets there or good enough for a major league he will have to play under some other manager." Earl is now catching for Scranton.

HUNTER MAY FILL BILL.

Pirates' New First Baseman Playing a Brilliant Game.

Much interest is being taken in the work of Fred Hunter, Pittsburgh's new first baseman. According to Manager Fred Clarke, his new guardian of bag No. 1 is the goods and will improve as the season advances. For seven years first base has been the one big weak spot on the Pirates, and every year there has been a fresh experiment, and every year before the echoes of "Aha—at last!" have died away the agents of the club are digging through the bushes for new material. But this season it appears different.

One year it was Clancy; another year it was Swacina, then Abstein, who was followed by Flynn. This season the Pirates' hope is Fred Hunter, and the word "hope" is used advisedly, for the average tenacity of the initial sack berth in recent years has been less than a single season. From the players' point of view the pillow has been a graveyard of baseball ambitions. Clancy, Swacina and Abstein have gone back. Of the four who have cavorted around the cushion in as many years Jack Flynn alone remains in the elite circle, fighting for prestige and place.

Hunter has been holding the bag in fine style since the season opened. He is a splendid thrower, handles the pegs well and covers a great deal of ground. His batting could be improved upon, but he gives promise. Hunter started out on his baseball career as a pitcher for the Chillicothe (O.) team. He twirled a good ball. He then took up playing the initial sack and made good from the start. Last year he was with the Kansas City team, and he was generally regarded as the best first baseman in the American association.

SHEPPARD GOING ABROAD.

Peerless Mel Says He Will Race in Scotland.

Melvin Sheppard, the best middle distance runner of this country, is going abroad this summer. He will sail early in July and compete in three big Scottish meets. They are the Celtics, the Rangers and the Ayrshire's games. Inability to round into his best condition is the only thing that will keep Sheppard home.

McFarland Is Sensible Pugilist.

Packy McFarland is investing his pugilistic earnings in Chicago real estate. "It was a long road to success," is the way McFarland puts it, "and when the time comes for me to retire I am going to have something back of me to carry me along for the remainder of my days."

Germany Has Crack Swimmer.

Pentz, a German swimmer, has just set up a new back stroke record of 2 minutes 50 3-5 seconds for 200 meters in a recent contest in Germany.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

CASHION WINS HIS OWN GAME FROM PATRIOTS

Greenville, S. C., May 4.—Cashion won his own game from the Greensboro boys here this afternoon, the score standing 10 to 2, allowing only one hit up to the eighth inning. He struck out eight men and also secured a single, a double and a triple, bringing in runs each time. Fisher was in poor form but he received much better support from hind fielders than was given Cashion. Greensboro's two runs were made on a single, a double by Bentley and a wild throw. The only features were two beautiful catches by Jenkins.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
Greenville . . . 210 002 50x—10 16 5
Greensboro . . . 000 000 020—2 4 2
Cashion and Kite; Fisher and Nippert.

MORE SLUGGING ON WINSTON DIAMOND

Winston-Salem, May 4.—There was more slugging in the game this afternoon, but the locals did the most of it, and won 8 to 6. Swindell was in better form than Salzsinger, but could not find the plate in the eighth and walked two men who scored later. In the ninth he was hit hard and cleanly for two more runs.

The Twins were one behind until their half of the eighth, when they hammered Salzsinger for five runs. In this inning Swindell hit one over the right field fence and scored a man ahead of him, winning his own game. J. Clancy put one over the same place in the fourth.

The fielding of Mullin and McEnroe featured the work of the outfield; Schumaker and McCarthy played a great game in the infield.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
Anderson . . . 010 100 022—6 10 2
Winston-Salem . . . 020 100 05x—8 15 3
Batteries: For Anderson, Salzsinger and Klock; for Winston-Salem, Swindell and Galvin.

DIAMOND DUST

Fifty runs, seventy-two hits and 18 errors in the games of one day seems to be rather overdoing the thing.

Cheer up. It might have been worse—for instance, 27 to 0.

The Patriots continue to make fewer errors than any of the rest of 'em.

We are tied for bottom place, but we claim fourth position in the percentage column, which puts us next to Charlotte.

Charlotte might sign some of the men released from police offices around the state.

How long must we wait for a 1 to 0 or a 2 to 1 score?

"Deacon" Morrissey lined out the long-meter doxology for the Twins yesterday.—Charlotte Chronicle.

That bunch of Spinners always were a stumbling block to the Patriots.

You won't read about many home-runs made in Greensboro and Charlotte this season.

Too much should not have been expected of Doyle's men after that all-night ride to Greenville.

The Electricians will meet the Patriots for the first time at Cone park next Monday afternoon.

The man who puts a ball over Greensboro's park fence will certainly deserve a home run.
